ABOUT LONE STAR PHP

The Lone Star PHP Conference is a yearly conference bringing together the best PHP and web-related speakers into the heart of Texas for a great three day event. Held in Addison, Texas, the conference gives developers, managers and even just those curious about the web a place to come and learn. With hands-on tutorial sessions, general talks and plenty of time to hang out and enjoy the company of fellow developers.

Thanks to the generous support of our sponsors year after year we're able to present this conference at minimal cost to our attendees, opening up attendance to many who could not normally justify the cost of similar events. We couldn't do it without their support and we hope that this year you'll help us share this experience with the community. With the amazing feedback we receive each year from our attendees and sponsors we continue to improve our event to keep our place as the best PHP community conference around.

That's where you come in! Maybe you're a company that's had a hard time attracting quality PHP developer talent or maybe you're just wanting to be more well known in the community. Whatever your need, we want to help you reach your goals.

We've been bringing this event to the Texas area for five years and have seen a wide variety of attendees including PHP developers, managers trying to understand what their developers do and even people just starting out on their web development adventures. We hold our Call for Papers each year before the event and invite the best and brightest from the community to submit. In years past we've had hundreds of submissions to select from, narrowing them down and crafting the best possible conference we can.
